Negotiations between the Austrians and the Soviets on the question of German property in Austria have made considerable progress. No actual agreement has yet been reached, but talks are proceeding very satisfactorily.

The latest discussion on the subject took place during the first week in October 1946 between Dr. Peter Krauland, Minister of Property and Economic Planning, and General Zheltov; the conference lasted three hours. Afterwards General Zheltov complimented Dr. Krauland on the latter's frankness which, Zheltov said, he much appreciated. ( )
